Hola, me llamo Alejandro. Durante nueve meses de mi vida, fui estudiante en Glasgow en el oeste de Escocia. Me alojé en una zona muy cerca de la universidad junto con dos compañeros.

Glasgow es la ciudad más grande de Escocia con unos ochocientos mil habitantes. Aunque al principio la ciudad puede parecer triste y gris, no lo es. Pronto descubrí que los escoceses son gente muy abierta y simpática, mucho menos reservados que los ingleses.

El paisaje escocés es impresionante; su costa, sus acantilados, sus bosques y sus montañas son preciosos. Pero ¡un consejo! No olvides el paraguas — incluso en junio.

Bueno, cada uno puede tener sensaciones diferentes al estar allí, pero yo me acuerdo de mi estancia en Escocia y de la gente que allí conoci, sobre todo cuando llueve.

1 me acuerdo de = I remember

4. In the local newspaper you read an article about a group of 8–15 year olds who are about to spend the summer holidays helping the police perform their duties.

Mañana comenzará el primer turno de la policía infantil. Los diecinueve niños, de ocho a quince años, ayudarán a patrullar las calles y a guiar a los turistas durante el verano. También escribirán en su libreta1 detalles de los problemas que encuentran, como papeleras rotas o vehículos mal aparcados.

Los pequeños agentes patrullan en parejas, en turnos de dos horas. Llevan el uniforme reglamentario — una camisa blanca y boina azul.

Los vecinos2 de la ciudad están acostumbrados a ver a los jóvenes agentes, pero los visitantes se sorprenden a veces cuando los ven y quieren posar para una foto con ellos.

Cuando termine el verano, el ayuntamiento organiza una cena para los niños y sus padres. Les entrega un pequeño regalo, como por ejemplo una mochila o una agenda electrónica.

El año pasado, el Rey visitó la ciudad y los niños tuvieron la oportunidad de estrecharle la mano.

Para los niños, ser policía es una labor que cumplen con orgullo.
